

Data Protection Statement

This data protection statement informs you of how your data will be handled if you use the pages of the website www.steuerrechtskanzlei-schmidt.de.

What data is collected?

When you use our website, the following data is stored by default in the log files of our internet service provider: the IP address of your computer, the page from which you arrived at our website, the pages you visit on our website including dates and times, and the operating system you use, including the browser and version. We have deliberately chosen the settings of our internet service provider so that we cannot see your IP addresses in our log files. This ensures that you remain anonymous to us.

Links

Our website contains links to third-party sites. Since we are not responsible for these sites, we cannot guarantee the privacy of your data should you visit them. Therefore, if you have any concerns, please read the individual site's privacy policy or contact the third-party directly.

Rights to retraction, information, revision, blocking and deleting of data.

If you have given your consent to the processing of your personal data, you can retract this at any time in the future without giving reasons. You have the right to receive free information about the personal data we have stored about you and a right to the revision of, blocking or deletion of data. For information about or revision of your data and/or enforcement of your other rights, please contact us at: Irmela Schmidt, E-mail: info@steuerrechtskanzlei-schmidt.de.

The right to make changes in the future to this Data Protection Statement are reserved.
